

RELATIONSHIP SUMMARY

Introduction

ChoiceTrade is registered as a broker-dealer with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and a member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (www.finra.org) and the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (www.sipc.org)

Brokerage and investment advisory services differ and it is important for you to understand the differences. ChoiceTrade is not an investment adviser.

Free and simple tools are available at Investor.gov/CRS where you can research firms and financial professionals, and where you can also find educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers and investing.

What Investment Services Can You Provide Me?

We facilitate the buying and selling of securities online for retail investors but do not provide recommendations on investments or investment strategies, investment advice or any other type of advice including what type of account you should set up, or what security you should buy or sell and when.

If you open an account with us, you alone must make your investment decisions and monitor your account and investments. We will not monitor your account for you.

We have a $100 minimum to open and maintain your account. In some instances, the minimum may be higher.

Certain subscription-based products may involve order entry by us on your behalf. You alone must decide whether or not to open an account for this service. Even if we enter orders on your behalf, we will not recommend such investments, rather, they will be based on signals provided by third parties. We will simply enter the orders in your account on a best-efforts basis as a convenience to you and only if you give us your authorization to do so. Even if we enter trades in your account, we will not monitor your account – you must do this yourself.

What Fees Will I Pay?

Transaction-related: We charge a commission for options and over-the-counter stock trades. Some clients pay different transaction fees by prior agreement. Whereas our commissions are low, even these low commissions will reduce your profits and add to your losses each time you trade. However, how often you trade is entirely up to you; we do not tell you when to do so.

Non-transaction-related: You will pay interest if you buy stock on margin. If you short stock, you will pay stock locate and borrow fees, which could be very high, depending on how easy or difficult it is to borrow the stock you hold short. Further, stock borrow fees are subject to change from day to day. We charge other non-transaction-related fees such as inactivity fees, account transfer out fees, wire out fees, and fees to hold over-the-counter stocks and, for non-US accounts, inception and monthly maintenance fees. Third parties offer subscription-based products for which we offer brokerage services. These products have either fixed monthly fees or transaction fees or, in some instances, both.

In the event these products issue recommendations on particular securities or investment strategies, these recommendations are not made by us but by the third party, even though we may share in the fixed monthly fee with them, our share of the fee is solely for the provision of brokerage services. Fees and account minimums for this service may be different than our regular fees and will be disclosed to you before you begin a particular program. To the extent we have provided more information about this service on our web site, you will find it here <https://www.choicetrade.com/landing4.php>.

Additional Information: You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying. A schedule of our fees and costs is available at <https://www.choicetrade.com/ctpricing.php#service-one>.

Help me understand how these fees and costs might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

As stated earlier, when you invest in an account with us, you are not giving us your funds to invest for you. Rather, you are investing them yourself. We are not involved in your investment decisions, or whether or not you decide to invest.

What are your legal obligations to me when providing recommendations? How else does your firm make money and what conflicts of interest do you have?

We do not provide recommendations. The way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask about these conflicts because they can affect the services we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means. If you transact penny stock in low dollar amounts, you will pay a flat fee per trade that could be a high percentage of the dollar amount transacted. If you trade pre- and post-market trades, we charge a per share fee that could reduce your profits or increase your losses, especially if the stock you are trading is under $1 per share.

If you subscribe to a product administered by a third-party and pay us the fixed subscription fee, we may share it with the third-party. If you pay the subscription fee to the third party, they may share the subscription fee with us. ChoiceTrade and/or third-party provider personnel may, but are not required to, participate in one or more of these programs in their own accounts. This may create a conflict of interest. If you authorize ChoiceTrade to enter trades in your account for a particular subscription-based program, we will put your interests ahead of our own. If you would like to find out more, please contact us at service@choicetrade.com.

How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

Since we charge low commissions, do not offer investment advice, and do not make any decisions about your investment account, you are in full control of your account. Our commissions and fees will reduce your profits or increase your losses. If you perceive any conflicts of interest, please ask us how we may help you avoid them.

How do your financial professionals make money?

Our financial professionals are compensated with a salary, not commissions or percentage of revenue. This method of compensation strives to eliminate conflicts of interest with our clients.
